Celtic Sojourn

By Eric Tripoli

Mark Roberts of Mattapoisett has been playing music for over 30 years. But while so many musicians were hypnotized by the gyrating fingers and slippery vibrato of volcanic rock and roll, Roberts was enamored by the rustic and stark intensity of folk music. When he was a student at ORR, Roberts was first exposed to Irish-influenced music by one of his teachers. In the early 1970s, Southeastern Massachusetts University, now known as UMass, Dartmouth, often featured regional acoustic folk acts. He attended these shows frequently and his love for the music grew stronger.

"The music I was drawn to was the instrumental music, which eventually became known as 'Celtic,'" Roberts said. "Celtic is really a mix of Scottish, Irish, and Welsh influenced music."

What began as an interest in the music progressed into a hobby, and eventually a career as a working musician. Roberts plays several instruments, including the five-string banjo, Irish flute, tin whistle, and guitar. He was a founding member of the American-Irish band Touchstone, which was featured on A Prairie Home Companion on NPR in 1983.

He has also had the good fortune of playing to an international crowd. Roberts has played in bands in Vancouver and toured Sweden with fiddle orchestra, Childsplay. But being a steadily employed musician isn't easy.

"It takes a lot of stamina," he said.

These days Roberts is more of a family man; he and his wife Andrea Cooper, who is also a flutist, have a five-year-old son. Roberts said he works as a carpenter and substitute bus driver in between gigs.

"It's a much different [music] scene now," he said. They were living in Seattle until three years ago when they decided to move back to Mattapoisett to be closer to Roberts' mother.

His next gig is at the Zeiterion Theater in New Bedford on Saturday, March 17. Roberts will be a featured musician at the annual St. Patrick's Day Celtic Sojourn concert, organized by WGBH host Brian O'Donovan. The two men have known each other for over 20 years as O'Donovan was a big supporter of Roberts' band, Touchstone. O'Donovan, who also organizes the Christmas Celtic Sojourn concert in December, has long been involved in promoting Celtic and folk music.

"Brian is great. He acts as sort of a filter for all the various music involved in the Celtic genre," Roberts said.

The St. Patrick's Day show, which has a second performance on Saturday, March 24, at the Sanders Theater in Cambridge, will feature several musicians representing different styles of folk, including Susan McKeown, The Bee Eaters, and Michael Brunnock. Roberts will be playing in a trio with Tina Lech and Joey Arbata.

While Mattapoisett may not be the first town that comes to mind for the homestead of a nationally known musician, Roberts loves the town. He lives now in the house he was raised in, surrounded by people he's known his whole life. His roots can actually be traced back to the Tinkhams, one of the first families to settle here. Though it may feel out of the way, Roberts does not seem to mind.

"What's great about being in New England is that four hours drive from here is Manhattan. Western Mass, parts of Vermont, Boston, Portland, Maine. I don't have to fly as much as I used when I lived in the Pacific Northwest," he said.

Roberts current project in the studio is a follow-up album to The Gloup, which he recorded with guitarist Dan Compton.

Spellbinding Spelling Bee By Katy Fitzpatrick

Caduceus is a name that was used in Ancient Greek Mythology to describe a servant or staff member that worked for a higher power. Its symbol is a winged staff with two serpents, but for a group of three Mattapoisett women, caduceus symbolized victory the evening of Friday, March 9 in the auditorium of Old Rochester Regional High School. For the first time in the town's history, the Mattapoisett PTA put together a community-wide Spelling Bee to raise money for the organization.

"We were brainstorming different fundraising ideas and I moved here from Nantucket two years ago. I co-chaired the Spelling Bee on the island," said Amy Wiggin, a Mattapoisett PTA member. "I brought the idea here, and we all loved it. We thought it would be a great community event."

The competition utilized a team format, where 20 groups of three went head-to-head in five rounds spelling out difficult words on dry erase boards with the hopes of making it to the championship round.

"We were very nervous in the first round," said Ellen Camacho, a member of the Spellbinders.

Team members included parents, doctors, philosophers, journalists, singers, coaches and many more. The competition was only open to people ages 14

The Spellbinders, a team comprised of Camacho, Cheryl Almeida and Laura Kearns, defeated the 19 other squads and walked away with a large trophy, t-shirts, and of course, bragging rights.

"It's so great to be out here supporting the Central School," said Almeida. "It was Ellen's idea for us to join. She's our team leader."

Fun 107.1 DJ Michael Rock played emcee for the event. Rock has children that are enrolled in the school district. Five preliminary rounds featured four teams spelling words dictated by fourth grade teacher Kevin Tavares. One by one, the teams were eliminated until the last five were standing.

The Velvet Hammers, the Big Kahunas, the Ideal Team, Johnny's Basement, and of course, the Spellbinders all earned spots in the championship round. Each team was successful in spelling odorous, scruple, rogue, pseudo and pugilist. However, when the time came to spell caduceus, only one team was victorious.

"The winning word was definitely the hardest one we had to spell," said Almeida.

The victory didn't come easy for the Spellbinders, who are all employed in the Old Rochester Business Office. They had been preparing hard for the weeks leading up to the Bee.

"We printed lists off the Internet and we studied those," said Kearns. "But I think it was our natural backgrounds that helped us the most."

The Velvet Hammers earned the runner-up honors by correctly spelling the word blitzkrieg. While not every team walked away with a prize, there was no doubting the success of the event, which took a few months and dozens of volunteers to plan.

"The event got a really good response," said Wiggin. "Everyone wanted to be a part of it, everyone wanted to help out. We had committee members, teachers, staff, parents and students. We really wanted the community to come together."

As for the Spellbinders, there are rumors circulating that they will be returning next year for a repeat victory.

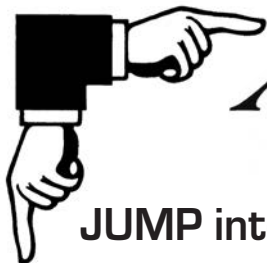

"We were talking about that earlier," laughed Kearns. "We'll be back. We'll be back."

ORR's Got Talent

The show was one of the bigger fundraisers organized by the Class of 2013, with most of the work being done directly by the class officers.

Vice President Michaela Riggi of Marion said that keeping everything organized was the most difficult aspect of the planning. The officers took care of everything, from creating the program to collecting the entry fees paid by the acts. But despite the work, she remained hopeful for her performing peers and humble about her role.

"I'm really excited. I feel like people will be really impressed with all the acts," she said. Class secretary Erin Murphy from Rochester, was very thankful for all the volunteers and donors who made the night possible.

"It's been fun to see all the people come out and to see the people who had talent. We're really glad for everyone, from the parents, our advisors, AMC Dartmouth who donated the popcorn, and [drama director] Paul Sardinha," she said. Sardinha assisted the students in organizing equipment and transitioning from act to act.

"It went brilliantly. There was great audience attendance," he said after the show as he congratulated the students backstage.

About six weeks ago, the class officers were discussing fundraising ideas, and they decided to organize a talent show. Jeannette Raposa, advisor to the Class of 2013, said she had very little direct involvement with the planning process, but offered her guidance from the sidelines.

"This is their baby," she said. Raposa was excited about the idea of a talent show because it offered the students and faculty the opportunity to see their friends and peers in a new context. "I want the students to be seen in a different light. We always see them in an academic setting. It's a good way to showcase the many talented students we have here," she said.

Talent show judge and chemistry teacher Erin Sullivan was looking forward to seeing a new side of some students whom she did not expect to see in the program. Fellow judge and English teacher Randy Allain, who graduated from ORRHS, did not see many of his own students on stage, but wanted to help out to support the school.

"I like seeing the kids have success planning an event like this. It's a big responsibility," he said.

After the permission slips had been signed, the entrance fees collected, auditions held, programs printed, concessions acquired, the show was ready. Class photographer Sophia Santos of Marion served as one of the Emcees for the evening.

"I'm nervous. I've never done this before," she said. She was not alone in her anxiety. In the halls and backstage, performers readied themselves by stretching, warming up their voices, rehearsing moves, and practicing lyrics.

Even the more seasoned performers admitted to pre-show jitters. Nick Mathiue, a junior from Rochester, quickly found his zone once he began singing "Dancing Shoes" by Gavin Degraw.

"It was nerve wracking," he said. "It was just like the normal jitters, but after I got into it, it was like no one else was there." Evan Lacombe, who danced to the song "Bloodstream," said he was nervous before performing, but he hid it well. He went on to win first place in the talent show.

The evening went off without a hitch. It featured everything from slow, passionate love ballads to fiery, intense choreography. Each student took the stage with an individual passion, hoping to not only entertain their school, but to offer themselves as ambassadors of the diverse character and culture of the Tri-Town youth.

The Night of the Iguana

By Tennessee Williams / Directed by Robin Richard

This is a tale of lust, love, and redemption set against the steamy background of sub-tropical Mexico. It tells of a defrocked minister and the women who fight for his body and soul. Reduced to working as a tour guide while besieged by inner demons, the man struggles to retain his dignity. As the last of Tennessee Williams' major artistic, critical and box office successes, the play's most poignant moments are scenes of enormous compassion growing from the need two people share for understanding and companionship. While veering off on sexual relationships and odd characters, Williams graces their final moments with nobility in gestures of unselfish aid to one another.

The audience was vivacious and their cheers and applause seemed to grow louder as each act took a bow, with the excitement often times preempting the end of the performances. The Class of 2013 had a goal of raising $1,500 from the night, but no matter how much money they collected, the class gave the ORRHHS community a way to appreciate the wealth of young talent that thrives here.

Marion Student Makes GeoBee Semifinals

By Laura Fedak Pedulli

The Turpan Depression, an oasis near the northern boundary of the Taklimakan Desert, is the lowest point in which country in Asia? Which country has the world's largest Muslim population—Indonesia or Mexico? What is the term for a part of an ocean or sea that cuts far into the bordering landmass and may contain one or more bays?

Answering these types of questions is par for the course for 13-year old Thomas Winters, an Old Rochester Regional eighth grader who recently qualified as one of Massachusetts' 2012 semifinalists for the National Geographic Geography Bee. Questions at these events touch on a wide range of topics – from weather, politics, culture to language – at the global level.

After winning the school-wide GeoBee at Old Rochester Regional Junior High in February, Winters' score on the national qualifying test established him as a semifinalist, according to eighth grade social studies teacher Steve Kocur.

"With this achievement he is eligible to compete at Worcester State University on Friday, March 30, for the state title," Kocur said.

Although Winters has not traveled beyond the U.S. borders, he said he enjoys world geography very much.

"I have an interest in it," he explained, adding that his nonfiction reading helps deepen his knowledge.

Winters described his victory at the ORRJHS Geographic Bee as a "nerve wracking" experience (He had lost the competition the previous year to a question on the Calgary Stampede).

"It came down to the best of three questions," he said, recalling that the final score was 1-0. The competition involved eight students, the top two geography whizzes from each grade, including John Breault, Connor Kelley, Becket Kiernan, Josh Lerman, Victor Morrison, Bryant Salkind, and Emil Assing.

As the junior high's victor, Winters took the 70-question National Geographic Geography Bee qualifying test; only 100 of the estimated 250 students who take the test get invited to the state semifinals, he said. All 50 states, as well as the District of Columbia and the U.S. territories, host semifinals to establish the best of the best.

If Winters wins the semifinals, he receives $100, the complete National Geographic Magazine on DVD, and gets the opportunity to compete the National Finals in Washington DC (hosted by Alex Trebec) on May 22 to 24.

And if he becomes the national champ, he'll receive $25,000 in college scholarships and an all-expenses paid trip to the Galapagos Islands.

For now, Winters said he is busy preparing for the Semifinals, which he said he is planning to attend with his parents.

Legal Battle Continues on Asphalt Plant By Laura Fedak Pedulli

The construction of a new bituminous concrete facility in northeastern Rochester has been delayed indefinitely due to a protracted legal battle.

The project was proposed for construction on a 5-acre site off King's Highway within Rochester's industrially zoned section of town – and would process 2,200 tons of bituminous concrete per day. Its controversy in part stems from its proximity to two residences.

On March 5, Benjamin Tymann of law firm Mintz Levin – who is representing residential and commercial abutters opposed to the plant – filed a 39-page appeal to Massachusetts Land Court contesting the Zoning Board of Appeal's February 9 approval of Edgewood Development's proposed facility.

The ZBA's decision had upheld the Planning

Board's May 24, 2011 affirmative decision on the plant, which was later appealed by Mintz Levin. The group filing the latest appeal includes Todesca Realty Trust (owner of Rochester Bituminous), Willard Realty Trust and residents Carol and Michael D'Acci, Brandon and Krystle Empey, Emma Galvin, Jeffrey Mason, and Sean Somers.

"As demonstrated by a mountain of expert evidence on the issues of property valuation and noise, traffic, lighting and visual impacts – presented first to the Planning Board then at the Board of Appeals – the Edgewood plant will have dramatic and damaging effects on each of these four properties and their residents," the appeal states.

According to Mintz Levin, the plant would be less than 25 yards from the Mason home (recently acquired by William Realty Trust) and 30 yards from longtime residents, the D'Accis.

"If the Edgewood plant is built, it will be a closer distance to its residential abutters than any other known asphalt plan in Massachusetts," said the appeal.

The opponents also argue that construction of the plant would violate a town bylaw, which states that "no such use is permitted which would be detrimental or offensive or tend to reduce property values in the same of adjoining district." According to Mintz Levin, construction of the plant would reduce nearby property values "by between 17 percent to 28 percent, or more."

Timothy Higgins of Edgewood Development said he was not surprised by the appeal.

"This is the third [bituminous plant construction] that I've been involved in... It's not crazy unusual," he said.

Higgins said he is "confident" that courts will rule in Edgewood's favor.

"We feel we will prevail, we feel the facts in our favor," he said. "The fact is that there an existing [bituminous] facility with an identical use in the area governed by the same rules works in our favor."

For now, it remains uncertain how long the legal wrangling will go on.

"It could be one year, or it could be three to four," he said. "It's very difficult to tell how long the court system will take."

(Kinsale Inn) received a less than warm welcome from a group of neighboring and concerned residents at the Mattapoisett Board of Selectmen's meeting on Tuesday, March 13. Nills Johnson and Andrea Perry, the owners of the new establishment, originally attended the meeting to transfer the name on the liquor license from the Kinsale Inn to the Inn on Shipyard Park, however they ended up fielding questions for nearly an hour from residents concerned about the noise level generated by the entertainment and patrons of the bar.

"We're trying to protect our property," said Maureen Butler, whose property abuts the establishment. "We shouldn't be victims of one establishment."

Butler's concerns and questions stem from the

EAR INFECTIONS

My dog has dark chocolate colored dirt in his ears and he is always shaking his head. Is this dirt? What causes this?

Your dog probably has a yeast infection in his ears. A dark, waxy discharge associated with a musky odor is a characteristic. Yeast infections are common in dogs that get water in their ears and dogs with allergies. Treating ears with a 50/50 mixture of vinegar and water makes an acidic environment that may resolve mild cases. If the ears look red or are painful, see your veterinarian.

noise levels that are coming from outside the bar as patrons are leaving when the bar closes. According to the license that was issued to the establishment, patrons must leave the bar by 11 p.m. during the week and 1 a.m. on the weekends.

Deanne Girouard, owner of the Mattapoisett Inn, also voiced concerns that bar guests are leaving beer cans in her bushes, as well as discarded cigarettes, which she claims set her porch on fire last year.

The Selectmen agreed that there have been more problems with noise in recent years given the number of management changes the inn has seen, however they also suggested giving the new owners a chance before ruling them out.

"It's easy to blame a single source of differentiation in a given area," said Selectman Tyler Macallister.

"It's not going to be perfect," said Selectmen Chair Paul Silva. "Give them a chance." Selectman Jordan Collyer proposed to let the new owners settle in with the current license and reevaluate the situation in a few months. If there continues to be a problem with noise, the Board can add conditions to the license that would include a noise ordinance.

"The important thing is to listen to concerns and understand the consideration of the neighbors," Collyer said.

If anyone knows the Mattapoisett community, it's Johnson, who was born and raised in the community and worked at the old Mattapoisett Inn when he was in high school. Now, after spending nearly ten years in Cambridge running a bar, his goal is to own the current Kinsale Inn building and transform it into something new while bringing it back to its roots.

"I just want the building to be relevant again," said Johnson.

Johnson plans to completely revamp the menu, steering away from traditional Irish fare and introducing a menu that is centralized more on American fusion cuisine. He still plans to keep the same genres of entertainment; however he is open to exploring more options.

"It's a big improvement," said Collyer.

The Board approved the changing of the name on the liquor license. Johnson and Perry now await license approval from the Massachusetts Alcoholic Beverages Control Commission. If approved in a timely manner, the two hope to begin their new lease on May 1. An entertainment license hearing will be held at the end of April.

In other news, Harbormaster Horace Field presented a letter to the Board that he issued to Robert Taylor outlining the new criteria Taylor will have to abide by for his aquaculture. At the Selectmen's meeting on February 28, several issues were brought to Taylor's attention by both Field and the Board showing that the majority of buoys and markers around Taylor's 100-acre aquaculture area were inadequate and unsafe.

Under the new rules, the four major buoys that are located in the corners of Taylor's area must have lights and must be visible from at least 2 nautical miles away. The lights need to flash every 2.5 seconds. Each of the corners must be connected by perimeter buoys, which must be 75 yards apart, white and have reflective tape. The entry buoys must be red and green and at least 24 inches in diameter.

Field said it is Taylor's responsibility to make sure these buoys and markers are working, and that as the Harbormaster he will make periodic checks to make sure everything is in order. If a defect is found, Taylor will have five days to fix it before further disciplinary action is taken. Field told the Board that Taylor has until May 1 to fulfill these obligations and that they are nonnegotiable.

The final plans for the North Street Reconstruction project should be in place by the end of the week. The process would implement a set of drainage pipes along North Street from Church Street, beyond Captain's Way to the South side of Water Street.

The pipes will handle the first initial storm water that passes through, ultimately depositing it to be cleaned in a bleaching area that will be located in a beach area parking lot. This new process will help to reduce flooding along these routes, and the pre-treatment bleaching unit will help to clean water and help prevent contamination. The beach portion of the project could be started as soon as April 1 so it can be completed by the start of beach season. The entire project, however, will take the majority of the summer to complete.

The Marine Advisory Board met with the Selectmen for their bi-annual meeting. The Selectmen presented a new set of rules and regulations that would change the annual votes for officers. Each member of the board must sign off on the new rules by the next Selectmen's meeting on March 27.

The Marine Advisory Board also gave an update on the ongoing regriidding project. Both the Selectmen and Marine Advisory Board agreed it is taking longer

"We are three years behind where we thought we would be five years ago," said Collyer.

A new launch service for Mattapoisett Harbor will be proposed at the next meeting on March 27. The Marine Advisory Board will be interviewing two companies that are interested in starting a launching service. A tentative date for interviewing has been set for March 21.

The Selectmen agreed to allow Bruce Mello every other Wednesday from May to the end of September to hold his Car Shows at Village Scoops.

More local meetings will be added to local programming after new equipment is installed this week to the TV station. In addition to the present coverage, the Selectmen are hoping to add Water and Sever Commission, Board of Health, Zoning Board of Appeals and Library meetings. The selectmen also said a greater on-demand library will be available online for residents if they are not able to watch the meetings on TV.

Marion Zoning Board of Appeals

By Laura Fedak Pedulli

Bay Watch Realty was hoping that the Marion Zoning Board of Appeals would close the hearing on its modified affordable housing project on March 8, but while progress was made, several outstanding issues led the board to continue it until March 22.

Nevertheless, much ground was covered at the second hearing on Bay Watch's latest 40B proposal – which would include two buildings with 30 affordable rentals and 36 freestanding homes (96 units total)– located off Route 105. Third-party consultant John Churchill reviewed a lengthy list of engineering concerns, but by the end of the hearing the developers and Churchill indicated that all issues could be resolved.

Some concerns raised at the first hearing on January 26 inched towards reconciliation. In particular, the developers had met with Building Commissioner Scott Shippey and the Fire/Police Departments regarding emergency access to the project – leading to some design changes.

Bay Watch engineer Ed Gless said they had widened pavement at several points in the site, including the main cul de sac, to facilitate the movement of fire apparatus. Also the developer agreed to show documentation that the proposed 75-foot wooden bridge into the project passes the muster of a structural engineer.

Shippey also signaled a need to identify an additional emergency exit route, but Bay Watch would require an easement or other agreement with abutter Sherman Briggs to make that happen.

The biggest wild card in the project is the fate of the main roadway into the project. At the hearing, Selectman Jon Henry spoke of his plans to ask the town to make the roadway public. A two-thirds vote would be required at town meeting for this to happen.

"It won't fly in town meeting," cautioned board member Betsy Dunn.

"You may be right, you may not be right. I see it as a necessity so that we can exert control over the road, including the maintenance, sewer, and utilities," said Henry, noting that the town is in the process of taking over three sewer systems due to poor management.

"We need to embrace the project. I think it would be better for us get our hands around all the utilities, and do so at town meeting," he said. "As far as a burden on the town, it's not that big of a deal."

The logistics of how children at the development would catch the bus would be solved if the roadway went public. Buses typically do not pick up children on private ways, thus the current plan could require them to catch the bus on Route 105. Board members had questioned if buses picking up children along Route 105 would back up traffic and create serious safety problems.

Ken Steen of Bay Watch said they could reach out to the school's bus contractor to arrange for them to pick up the kids inside the development – but some members on the board felt this would not work.

"If they come inside, it would solve issue in a heartbeat," Steen said. However, Henry said the town has an "obligation" to maintain the road.

Town Counsel Jon Whitten pointed out that the roadway could not be taken by the town until it is actually built – thus urged Bay Watch to work with the town's third-party engineer to ensure they meet the town's roadway specifications as much as possible.

"We tried to design all roads as closely as we could to the town standards given the restrictive nature of site and layout. We've done all we can do to get as close to standards as we can. That being said, we'll take another look at that and see if there are a few things to tweak," said Steen.

Another major outstanding issue was whether the Massachusetts Department of Housing and Community Development would consider the project as viable affordable housing stock. Bay Watch had originally asked to keep all 36 single-family homes non-affordable, but in recent months the Selectmen expressed the desire for Bay Watch to have at least 25 percent (or eight or nine homes) marked as affordable – which is a typical requirement of the state. All rentals units at the project would be affordable.

Paul Haverty, counsel for Bay Watch, said that DHCD "has not yet given a definite answer" and that the agency requested 30 days to respond to this policy question.

"After looking at the big picture, and weighing in comments from the Select Board – what we'd like to do is offer two units of the 36 [single-family homes] for sale at 80 percent of the median income, to allow the town to count them towards its 10 percent inventory," Steen proposed.

"If DHCD makes the decision that more units would be required, we would obviously provide those. We would be willing to accept the decision locally that no less than two units be provided," he added. The sale price of a single-family home in the project would be $340,000; at the affordable rate the price would be reduced by $140,000 to cost $200,000, he said.

"We do have a certain comfort level. We don't think they are going to require more than two," said Steen.

Under the advice of Town Counsel, the board opted to wait until they hear from the DHCD on the matter. Bay Watch had wanted the ZBA to close the hearing that night, but Whitten insisted that the board give the public an opportunity to weigh in on this aspect of the project in an open hearing.

Whitten also urged the ZBA to ensure homeowners' documents are fully detailed prior to approval. These associations would ensure maintenance and upkeep of the grounds, in particular the roads.

"That is a serious issue ... All those documents need to be in place to make sure the bifurcated project has been protected," he said.

Mr. Steen said that Bay Watch already has a plan to allocate costs, with the 36 homes responsible for 47 percent and the rental units responsible for 53 percent of maintenance costs of the common roadway, sewer pumping station and utilities.

In the end, Chairman Wedge indicated that progress is being made, and told Bay Watch developers that the board is working diligently to complete the process.

"Even though [the Bay Watch 40B proposal] has a history of 11 years, virtually everyone on our board is new, but we're not going to be dragging any heels at this end," he said.

bundled land on Whaler's Way. Rich Rheame of Prime Engineering provided updated plans to the Commission with new drainage calculations for the property. They voted to continue the hearing in two weeks so they could review the new documents.

Next, the Commission heard from Ken Ferreira, representing the Goularts, who would like to build a house. The plan is to build a single-family home for the Goularts' in-laws, adjacent to their home. Claudia Richards, an abutter, said that she did not receive a notice regarding the NOI because Mr. Ferreira did not have the current mailing addresses of some abutters. The hearing was continued in order for Ferreira to send notices to all known abutters.

They also approved a plan by D & P Builders to construct a house at Brandt Point Village, subject to verification of proper flag placement and a new dewatering plan, to avoid potential flooding issues on abutting properties.

Dave Davignon of Schneider and Associates was present, representing Cedar Realty Trust's NOI to build an addition at 7 Cedar Road. The Conservation Commission voted in favor of the plan. The Commission also heard from Davignon regarding the deconstruction of a home and construction of a new home at 29 Nashawena Road. The commission voted to approve the plans as submitted pending an amended order of conditions.

participates in community service. Students are chosen from Old Rochester Regional High School, Old Colony Regional Vocational Technical High School, Wareham High School, and Upper Cape Regional Vocational Technical High School. Their teachers, who then vote for the winning candidate, submit student nominations. According to Exalted Ruler Susan Gifford of Elks Lodge of Wareham No. 1548, all of the students of the month will be recognized in May at a banquet sponsored by the Lodge.

"During the banquet, we call up each student and present them with a savings bond to help fund their future education," Gifford said.

For the month of February, Old Rochester Regional senior Molly Magee, from Mattapoisett, received the honor. Nominated by physical education teacher, Nancy Cowen, she noted Magee's dedication to community service in the athletic department as the hallmark reason for her nomination.

"Where Molly really stands out is where she helps in the gym," Cowen said.

Every week, she arrives to school early to assist Cowen with preparing for the physical education classes. For three semesters, Magee has been helping Cowen supervise weight room activities, refereeing games, and keeping class attendance.

Magee, who is also an A-student in physical education, played basketball for three years and has been on the varsity softball team all four years of high school. Last year, she was nominated for the girls' all-start softball team. She not only challenges herself as an athlete, but in the classroom as well. Magee is enrolled in AP Statistics, Pre-Calculus, physics, and Honors 5 Latin. She is also a member of the National Honor Society.

For all of these credentials, she remains a quiet, humble, and patient student. While she has received many messages of congratulations from her teachers, she is realistic about how they see her.

"It's nice because you're competing against other students, but I know my teachers will probably expect a lot more from me now," Magee said.

Maintaining high academic performance and leadership only 44 days from her last day as an ORRHs student may be easier said than done. The inevitable senioritis bug has bitten many of her peers, who are eager to begin their post-high school lives, whether their future holds college, military, or a job. Magee seems unaffected by it so far, but does not predict that will last much longer, as spring quickly approaches.

"I think by April vacation, I will be waiting for that last day to come," she said. She is planning on attending the University of Rhode Island in the autumn to

It will be a bittersweet feeling when she walks out the door of ORRHS for the last time. Students like her, who offer so much of their time and energy helping others, are not a dime a dozen. Cowen will have to adjust to life without Molly come September.

"I will miss her next year," she said. "It was nice to have someone willing to come help all the time."

Town To Help Cover Sippican Shortfall

Marion School Committee

By Joan Hartnett-Barry

The Marion School Committee meeting on Wednesday evening, March 7 offered a detailed explanation of how a child qualifies under the federal and state Special Education Enrollment program.

Director of Student Services, Teresa Hamm provided a flow chart, labeled ProjectIDEAL, which illustrated the various phases, from identifying a need, referral, evaluation, eligibility for assistance and determining services needed to assist in student progress. Special education includes children from ages three through 22.

Several attendees asked questions about the process, including Mike Canavan who asked about services at the junior high school. Hamm referred to various handouts and reassured attendees that careful analysis is done on a consistent basis to ensure needs are addressed.

In Marion, 74 out of 477 students, 74 (or about 15.5 percent) require special education services, with 3.1 percent requiring out-of-district educational services, according to Hamm's handout. The topic was being specifically addressed due to the increase in services shown in the fiscal year 2013 budget.

In a discussion on the Fiscal Year 2013 budget, Superintendent, Doug White reported that he had met with the Marion Finance Committee, Town Administrator Paul Dawson and the Board of Selectmen and found that the town is willing to assist in working out a compromise on the proposed shortfall in the level services budget.

According to Committee Chair Brad Gordon, the details have not been worked out and the budget subcommittee has yet to review all the information, but was "relieved" that the shortfall issue has been greatly reduced.

"We need to see the influence on the budget and prepare and propose a revised FY 2013 budget, which will include a public hearing prior to our vote on it at the April 4 school committee meeting," said Gordon.

According to White, the primary budget drivers include contractual obligations for current and retired teachers, an increase in the number of students attending Bristol Agricultural School and increased special education costs.

White said that two Marion students attend Bristol County Agricultural High School in Dighton, MA, majoring in animal husbandry, which is not offered at Upper Cape Vocational Technical School, where Marion students go for vocational education.

White said that he continues to target legislators on Beacon Hill to encourage that they support a foundation budget that will increase funding to handle the ever changing special education needs as well as address the increasing health insurance costs that are impacting school budgets.

Principal Lyn Rivet gave her report and said that the fourth grade will complete the MCAS long composition test on March 20. Other MCAS testing will take place on March 27 and March 29. Ms. Rivet reported that attendance is steady at 97 percent.

The board voted and approved Christine Winters to represent the school committee on the newly formed Special Education Sub-Committee which is looking into changing the way special needs funding is distributed among the district and four elementary schools in the Tri Town.

The proposed idea is to keep special needs costs involving students ages three through sixth grade within the individual towns, and pushing the special needs costs for grades seven through age twenty-two to the district budget. The committee has not met yet, but plan to bring any proposals to be voted upon and implemented for the fiscal year 2014 budget process.

Food Director, Caitlyn Meagher discussed the food service budget and reported slow but steady progress in improving efficiency, lowering costs and increasing lunch participation at Sippican School. Meagher reported that 41 percent of Sippican School students purchased lunch in January of 2012 versus 40 percent in January of 2011.

and Old Hammondtown will maintain services at a near level-funded capacity next year – with no significant cuts in programs or staff on the table.

At the Mattapoisett school committee meeting on Monday, March 12, Chairperson Gracinda Knox said the $5,752,725 preliminary fiscal year 2013 budget represents a 1.05 percent, or $59,882 increase, from FY 2012 levels. This budget would encompass $41,297 in increases for regular day education and $18,585 in increases for special education.

"It's a one percent increase without any reduction to student services," said Knox. She commended Superintendent Doug White on his efforts on the budget. "Over the last three years, he has learned our budgets really well."

Both White and Knox said the budget is subject to change – and that the final Old Rochester Regional budget could marginally impact the numbers. A public hearing on the proposed budget is tentatively scheduled for the committee's April 9 meeting – a required step before it is up for vote at the town's May 14-16 Town Meeting.

At the Monday meeting, White and the two schools' principals – Rosemary Brown and Matt D'Andrea – offered a snapshot of the possible budget and changes in Mattapoisett staffing and student population for next year.

The latest numbers – which reflect increases tied to contractual obligations and higher curriculum costs for new ELA and Science programs – was the result of the school committee's ability to whittle down $47,113. The committee so far has identified reductions in supplies, psychology services, professional development, travel / conferences to bring down expenses, according to White's presentation.

Changes in staff, a reduction in special education tuition costs and utility savings all helped keep the budget manageable.

According to the principals' presentation, both Center School and Old Hammondtown are projected to welcome fewer students than last year, 283 and 209 respectively. The loss accounts for the potential drop of one teacher in both Grade 1 and Grade 6. In Grade 6, 85

Preparing for the National Latin Exam

By Anne Smith

March 15, 44 B.C. is a date that every Latin student at Old Rochester Regional High School knows. Referred to by scholars and historians as the Ides of March (Roman calendars counted days backwards from the fixed Kalends, Nones, and Ides during each month), this date marks the assassination of Julius Caesar, the infamous Roman dictator. Every year, the Ides of March also marks the test date for the National Latin Exam.

ORR has always offered this unique test-taking experience to its Latin students. While the exam's name implies that Latin students from the entire country try their best to answer questions about vocabulary, grammar, and culture, it is in fact an understatement of the exam's popularity and scope. In fact, Latin students from all over the world take the National Latin Exam annually.

The National Latin Exam, which ORR students took in the high school's library during first block this Wednesday, offers five levels of examinations. These range from Introduction to Latin to Latin V/VI. Students from the Old Rochester Regional Junior High School also take the National Latin Exam; they take Latin I. The track that students from the Old Rochester Regional School District normally take is Latin I, Latin II, Latin III/IV Prose, and Latin III/IV Poetry.

Each test consists of 40 questions. The first portion of the test focuses on grammar. Typically, these questions ask for the proper translation of a noun, pronoun, verb, adverb, and sometimes conjunction. The second portion of the test focuses on vocabulary and derivatives in the English language. The third portion of test, which typically ends after question 25, focuses on the culture of the Romans, as well as their government, history, and geography. In order to do well on the National Latin Exam, students must have a working knowledge of both the language and its speakers. The remaining ten or 15 questions involve a translation, which students must read, understand, and interpret. Usually the translation is prose, although students taking the Latin III/IV and Latin V/VI exam may elect to take an exam with poetry.

Usually, the ORR School District pays for the exams. However, this year the budget is tight and while the school has continued to pay for the registration fees and shipping cost of the exams, the students must pay the $4 cost of their individual exams. Since students are now partly paying for their exams, they have been given the choice of whether to take the exam or not. Across the board, the number of ORR students taking the National Latin Exam has declined. Students were actually able to take the exam in the library instead of the cafeteria. But the situation is not completely dire; as ORR Latin teacher Judith Prétat noted, she has a group of students taking the Latin III/IV Poetry exam this year, which is the first time since 2005.

By taking the National Latin Exam, students open to themselves scholarship and award opportunities. Every year, the administration behind the National Latin Exam analyzes the test scores for the purpose of awarding medals and certificates to strong Latin students. Students can receive Summa cum laude (gold medal), Maxima cum laude (silver medal), Magna cum laude (certificate), and cum laude (certificate.) Students who achieve Perfect Papers receive a hand-lettered certificate. Students who receive multiple Perfect Papers and/or multiple Summa cum laude awards are eligible for different scholarships — many of these require recipients to study Latin or Greek during their first year of college.

By: India Krawczyk

ORR winter sports are winding down, and athletes are starting to prepare for their spring sports. Within the next few weeks, the spring track, tennis, lacrosse, baseball, and softball teams will begin preseason to prepare for their respective games and meets. Here is a look at the winter sports with athletes still competing. Old Rochester Girls Track – The Girls 4x200 meter team – composed of Paige Santos, Morgan DaSilva, Ally Saccone and Hannah Walsh – traveled to New York for Nationals where, unfortunately, they were disqualified for a bad handoff. Nevertheless, with Walsh and Saccone currently juniors and Santos and DaSilva, sophomores, we will most definitely be seeing more of these athletes at this level in the future.

Saccone also excelled on an individual level at Nationals running a time of 8.85 seconds in the 60 meter Hurdles. She set a new record for ORR and placed 18th, which moved her onto the semifinals. She is now the 16th fastest female hurdler in the United States and the third fastest high school Hurdler in Massachusetts's history. Congratulations, Ally!

Old Rochester Hockey – The team's record stands at 12-3-6 overall and 9-1 in the SCC – good enough to make them SCC Conference co-champs along with Bourne High School.

On a more individual level, Senior Max Sherman had been selected to play in the Massachusetts State Hockey Coaches Association High School All-Star

To the editor:

I would like to applaud the good job done by the Mattapoisett Board of Selectmen at the February 28 meeting.

Paul Silva, Jordan Collyer and Tyler Macallister along with our Harbormaster, Horace Fields, worked to solve some of the issues that have been problematic with the Aquaculture farms in our Mattapoisett waters.

The Marine Advisory Board worked very hard all summer, listening to the concerns of Mattapoisett concerning the use of and preservation of our recreational waters.

You will be happy to hear that our town officials are all working together now to uphold the new Aquaculture rules and regulations as written.

I felt proud and honored to be witness to small town government at its best.

Thank you all!

To the editor:

While budget struggles mount for area towns, is it now time for local government to let the taxpayers know about the costs for unfunded financial liabilities?

Several years ago, both the New Bedford Standard-Times and the Boston Globe editorialized that sick day buybacks alone would bankrupt some communities in the future.

Was anyone listening?

Sick day buybacks (unpaid sick days purchased under varying terms once an employee leaves a government position) are just one tiny sector of a government's unfunded liability potential.

Others include shared healthcare costs, even after retirement; clothing allowances (in some communities called a uniform allowance); longevity payments annually, personal days for perfect attendance every six months, etc.

On March 7, I was one of a handful of folks attending a public hearing on the proposed fiscal year 2013 budget for Old Rochester Senior and Junior High Schools.

I was curious about unfunded financial liabilities and not hearing anything related to this but quite aware that seven teaching and custodial positions would go unfunded next year asked the question:

"How much money is in this budget for sick day buybacks and what would the liability be if the practice

EDITOR'S PICK OF THE WEEK

ORR's Got Talent

By Eric Tripoli

On the evening of Wednesday, March 7, the auditorium of Old Rochester Regional High School was packed with students, parents, teachers, and faculty – a community gathered to support some of their brave and talented friends who took the stage with song and dance to raise money for the Class of 2013 spring semi-formal.

The show was one of the bigger fundraisers organized by the Class of 2013, with most of the work being done directly by the class officers.

Vice President Michaela Riggi of Marion said that keeping everything organized was the most difficult aspect of the planning. The officers took care of everything, from creating the program to collecting the entry fees paid by the acts. But despite the work, she remained hopeful for her performing peers and humble about her role.

"I'm really excited. I feel like people will be really impressed with all the acts," she said.

Class secretary Erin Murphy from Rochester, was very thankful for all the volunteers and donors who made the night possible.

"It's been fun to see all the people come out and to see the people who had talent. We're really glad for everyone, from the parents, our advisors, AMC Dartmouth who donated the popcorn, and [drama director] Paul Sardinha," she said. Sardinha assisted the students in organizing equipment and transitioning from act to act.

"It went brilliantly. There was great audience attendance," he said after the show as he congratulated the students backstage.

About six weeks ago, the class officers were discussing fundraising ideas, and they decided to organize a talent show. Jeannette Raposa, advisor to the Class of 2013, said she had very little direct involvement with the planning process, but offered her guidance from the sidelines.

"This is their baby," she said. Raposa was excited about the idea of a talent show because it offered the students and faculty the opportunity to see their friends and peers in a new context. "I want the students to be seen in a different light. We always see them in an academic setting. It's a good way to showcase the many talented students we have here," she said.

Talent show judge and chemistry teacher Erin Sullivan was looking forward to seeing a new side of some students whom she did not expect to see in the program. Fellow judge and English teacher Randy Allain, who graduated from ORRHS, did not see many of his own students on stage, but wanted to help out to support the school.

"I like seeing the kids have success planning an event like this. It's a big responsibility," he said.

After the permission slips had been signed, the entrance fees collected, auditions held, programs printed, concessions acquired, the show was ready. Class photographer Sophia Santos of Marion served as one of the Emcees for the evening.

"I'm nervous. I've never done this before," she said. She was not alone in her anxiety. In the halls and backstage, performers readied themselves by stretching, warming up their voices, rehearsing moves, and practicing lyrics.

Even the more seasoned performers admitted to pre-show jitters. Nick Mathiue, a junior from Rochester, quickly found his zone once he began singing "Dancing Shoes" by Gavin Degraw.

"It was nerve wracking," he said. "It was just like the normal jitters, but after I got into it, it was like no one else was there." Evan Lacombe, who danced to the song "Bloodstream," said he was nervous before performing, but he hid it well. He went on to win first place in the talent show.

The evening went off without a hitch. It featured everything from slow, passionate love ballads to fiery, intense choreography. Each student took the stage with an individual passion, hoping to not only entertain their school, but to offer themselves as ambassadors of the diverse character and culture of the Tri-Town youth.

The audience was vivacious and their cheers and applause seemed to grow louder as each act took a bow, with the excitement often times preempting the end of the performances.

The Class of 2013 had a goal of raising $1,500 from the night, but no matter how much money they collected, the class gave the ORRHS community a way to appreciate the wealth of young talent that thrives here. A slide show of the show is available on our website.

was stopped today and we paid the employees their due?"

The answers were not immediately available but were promised. Within hours, the superintendent's office volunteered the following:

"Next year's budget for the two schools earmarks $11,050 for sick day buybacks. Seems reasonable."

As of last September, the tri-town liability for paying off the accumulated sick days just at the two schools would be $210,468. That's frightening.

Then came the shocker: If all of the unfunded liabilities for the two schools, projected into the future, were paid, the cost would be $12,900,000.

This I consider unsustainable!

Particularly when the potential costs for all other town employees are not included in that figure.

So my question to tri-town officials: Now what?

MOVIE REVIEW

Fixer Upper

By Rob Gonsalves
www.robsmovievault.com

Silent House. Starring Elizabeth Olsen and Adam Trese. Directed by Chris Kentis and Laura Lau. Running time: 88 minutes. MPAA rating: R.

Editing, said Stanley Kubrick, is what truly sets cinema apart. The medium borrows from other art forms — photography, music, theater — but cutting from this image to that image, imposing order on time and space, belongs to movies (and TV). So it's not surprising that only a handful of feature-length "single-take" films — with no visible editing — have ever been made. Hitchcock's Rope is probably the most famous example, but even there Hitch cheated, using clever camera moves to camouflage his edits. There haven't been many such experiments since, though one of them was 2010's La Casa Muda, a Uruguayan horror film, and another is its new American remake, Silent House.

Elizabeth Olsen is Sarah, who accompanies her dad (Adam Trese) and uncle (Eric Sheffer Stevens) to their dilapidated lake house. It needs a lot of fixing up; the power's shut off, the phones are out, and it may as well have a sign on the front lawn reading "Ideal Setting for an Inexpensive Horror Film." The uncle gets annoyed with Sarah's dad and takes off for a while. Sarah hears noises upstairs. Her dad goes to investigate; something happens to him. There appears to be someone in the house stalking Sarah. The movie is shot using only available light, too, so half the time we sit in the dark listening to Sarah's tortured breathing and crying.

This is the third collaboration of husband-and-wife team Chris Kentis and Laura Lau, who divided horror fans in 2004 with Open Water. Many considered that minimalist shark-fest dull and repetitive, but I admired its sense of futility in the face of uncaring nature. Silent House isn't nearly as absorbing. The underlit setting occasionally produces unsettling, suggestive imagery, but the technique took me out of the movie — I was always looking for "invisible edits," the points at which the camera pans across something dark, giving the filmmakers a chance to cut. We're meant to be stuck right there with Sarah in her uncomprehending terror, but it just feels like a gimmick; in practice, it might as well be yet another found-footage movie.

It all leads up to an absurd twist ending that, like the one in High Tension, raises many inconvenient questions. The horror seems to shift from physical to supernatural, and then to psychological. Maybe it played better when they did it in Uruguay, but the plot contortions feel like a cheat. Without spoiling things, let's say that Elizabeth Olsen, a good actress who sustains Sarah's panic, is not quite physically plausible as having done the things we're to assume Sarah has done. Silent House tries to go a long way — "88 minutes of real fear captured in real time," claim the ads — on mood and suggestion, which is noble, I guess, but I wish it worked. And, again, the film is the new Exhibit A to prove why there aren't many single-take films. Editing, as Kubrick knew, can do anything; it can evoke joy, sorrow, fear. Hitchcock pulled his experiment off (though people forget Rope did have one visible cut for effect), and then never did it again. It's ironic, since I usually berate filmmakers for being too edit-happy, but purposely doing without the tool that makes cinema cinema calls attention to itself more than the most rapid-fire cutting does.

SALOME'S STARS

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) Keep an open mind about a suggestion you see as unworkable. Give it a chance to prove itself one way or another. The results could surprise both supporters and detractors.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) News about an upcoming venture causes you to make some last-minute adjustments in your plans. But the extra work will pay off, as you come to learn more about the potential benefits opening up.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) A more positive aspect grows out of your determination to reach your immediate goals. Continue to keep your focus sharp and on target by steering clear of petty quarrels and other pesky problems.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) By acting as a voice of reason, you can avoid adding to an already turbulent situation. You might have to shout over the tumult, but your words ultimately will be heard and heeded.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) The possibility of a new acquisition always makes those Leonine eyes light up. But be careful that what you see is what you want. Appearances can often be deceiving.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) No matter how much you might feel that you're in the right, resist saying anything that could reignite a still-unresolved situation. Let the matter drop, and move on.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Help with a personal problem comes from an unexpected source. You also find workplace pressures easing. Use this period of calm to restore your spent energies.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) You might have to share the credit for that project you're working on. But there'll be enough credit to go around, and your efforts will be recognized and rewarded.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Details need to be dealt with before you can move on to another area. Make sure you don't leave any loose ends that could later cause everything to unravel.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) News about a change in the workplace carries with it a challenge you could find difficult to resist. Check it out. It could be what you've been waiting for.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Allowing your artistic nature full expression will help restore your spirits and will put you in the mood to take on that new career challenge. A Libra creates excitement.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) Expect to happily plunge right into a hectic social whirl starting at week's end. Your aspects favor new friendships as well as the strengthening of old relationships.

BORN THIS WEEK: Like St. Patrick (who was also born this week), your spiritual strength is an inspiration to others.

Junior Program.

"We're excited to be holding this open house and hope, as a result, that more young children will get involved with sailing," said George "Twice" Tougas, BYC Jr. Sailing Chairman. "It's incredible to see a six year old maneuver his own boat in the harbor for the first time, and it creates a sense of accomplishment and camaraderie. It really helps build self-esteem. There's nothing like it."

Additional questions about the event and Junior Sailing can be answered by calling the BYC office at 508-748-0540. Families who are not able to attend the Open House may download information as well as application and registration forms at www.BeverlyYachtClub.org. Families are encouraged to register by April 16 in order to avoid a late fee.

The Beverly Yacht Club, founded in 1872, is one of the oldest private yacht clubs in the United States. Situated on Sippican Harbor, the club's purpose is to "promote yachting and good fellowship among its members."

• Irish Music and Fun -- Children ages 4-10 are invited to take part in Music 'n' Fun Class with Aoife Clancy: A St. Paddy's Day Celebration on Saturday, March 24 at 11:30 am. Aoife Clancy brings her years of music experience and her unique style of teaching to incorporate traditional Irish music, song and dance from her Celtic roots. Aoife feels it's important to get children involved in music class, so she'll be demonstrating a simple Irish jig along with songs her father taught her growing up in Ireland. She will share stories of Irish mythology dating back hundreds of years. All of this will be done in a very informal and fun way. The class should run about 50 minutes in length, and space will be limited. Comfortable clothing should be worn and shoes will be removed to avoid little people from getting hurt. Call 508-763-8600, drop by the library at 17 Constitution Way, Rochester, or email info@plumblibrary.com to reserve a space. This program is sponsored by the Friends of Plumb Library.

get complicated with the unexpected arrival of Polly's parents as well as Lord and Lady Brockhurst – but not to worry, a happy ending is in store for all!

The show's memorable characters include the flirtatious Mme. Dubonnet, her boy-crazy students and Polly (the role which turned Julie Andrews into an overnight sensation). With its catchy tunes, period dances (including the inevitable Charleston) and winning sense of humor, The Boy Friend is a sparkling, tongue-in-cheek 1920's romp.

international bird tour leader, columnist and author. Laux has birded extensively all over North America and visited all seven continents, including over 20 trips to the Antarctic, to observe birds and some of the most spectacular wildlife and scenery on the planet. He has written thousands of newspaper columns about birds and the natural world appearing in the New York Times, the Cape Cod Times, the Martha's Vineyard Times, Vineyard Gazette, and Nantucket's Inquirer and Mirror, and published magazine articles in a variety of magazines including Birder's World and Birding, and is author of the book Bird News-Vagrants And Visitors On A Peculiar Island.

He is on the radio the first Monday of every month as the permanent guest on The Point with Mindy Todd on the Cape and Island National Public Radio stations WCAI, WNAN and WZAI to discuss and take phone calls about birds. He also writes and records for broadcast a weekly commentary called Bird News that airs two days per week.

Passionate about wildlife, especially birds and butterflies, his favorite group is shorebirds, fabulous globetrotting migrants that fly to the "ends of the earth" twice annually.

Laux was the ABC News "Person of the Week" with host Peter Jennings, the last Friday in August 2004 after finding the rarest bird in the Americas so far this century a Red-footed Falcon. He lives on Nantucket and is the Resident Naturalist, Land Manager and Education Director for the Linda Loring Nature Foundation.

MAC to present Romantic Fools

On March 16, 17, 18, 23 and 24, the Marion Art Center will provide the perfect date-night comedy: Romantic Fools, a comic vaudeville revue by playwright Rich Orloff and directed by Sheila Furtado. The play consists of 11 two-character sketches examining love, lust, dating, and romance -- from a date with a caveman to the joys of dull lovemaking.

With influences of Monty Python, Saturday Night Live, Jules Feiffer, the Marx Brothers, and classic vaudeville comedy, these sketches vary in style but all celebrate the inherent hilarity of male-female relationships. Take note: this show is for adults only!

The Marion Art Center is located at 80 Pleasant the National Geographic Channel. In 2006, he was asked to contribute his film, "An Eye in the Storm" and photographs of Hurricane Katrina to the U.S. pavilion at the Architecture Biennale in Venice, Italy.

Since September 2005, Al Neil and his family have resided on the SouthCoast following the events of Hurricane Katrina. They chose to stay in Massachusetts for the education opportunities presented to their son Calder who had just began his freshman high school year when the storm hit New Orleans.

Neil shares studio space with his wife, Nancy, at 88 Hatch Street in New Bedford and is a founding member of Gallery 65 on historic William Street in downtown New Bedford.

He is currently working on his latest documentary film "Finding Thuy", the extraordinary story about the return of two diaries of a young Vietnamese doctor killed in 1970, that were returned to her mother and sisters in Ha Noi 35 years later by the American soldier who cared for them (www.findingthuy.com).

In 2010, Neil had his first Massachusetts solo exhibition of photographs at New Bedford Museum of Art: Landscapes of Louisiana and the Commonwealth 2005-2010. He continues to work with design professionals in architecture, interior, landscape and urban planning.

In conjunction with Youth Art Month, the art students at Sippican Elementary School, under the supervision of their art teacher, Erin Kirk, will exhibit works also entitled "Portraits". Kirk has assembled a collection of portraits done by the children that includes several works from each grade level and represents various mediums, including sculptures, all of which will be on exhibit in the Patsy Francis Gallery from March 9 until April 24. There will be a special opening reception for the students and their parents on Friday, March 9 from 3:30 to 5:30 pm.

The main focus of the Art Program at Sippican Elementary School is the production, or making, of art.

Most of the projects are introduced with an art history or appreciation lesson in which the students view and discuss the art of a selected period, culture, or artist.

The Sippican Art program emphasizes that learning to be an artist is much like learning a sport. With patience, persistence, practice, problem solving, and a positive approach, every student has the ability to create beautiful and meaningful art.

A letter explaining educational plans and goals, a transcript, and a letter of recommendation is required. Deadline is March 30.

FISH Volunteers

FISH is an acronym for Friends in Service Helping. We are strictly a volunteer service. We provide rides for our elderly residents who cannot drive anymore to medical appointments. We service our Mattapoisett residents with help getting to medical appointments from home to Wareham, Marion, Fairhaven, New Bedford and Dartmouth.

FISH has serviced Mattapoisett for over 30 years and would like to continue to serve. We are in need of more volunteers. We need callers and drivers. If you have a little time you could spare during the month, please consider volunteering with FISH. You are never locked into any date, the time if your choice.

To become a volunteer or to receive more information, call Jacquie McGraw at 508-758-9278 or contact the Mattapoisett Council on Aging.
